Chabahar Port and its importance for India?

India signed a 10-year contract with Iran to develop and run the operations of Shahid Beheshti Terminal of the Chabahar Port on the southeastern coast of the Persian Gulf nation. Eight years later and two decades since the project was first proposed during the Atal Bihari Vajpayee regime, India signed a deal with Iran to operate the strategically important port that is close to Iran's border with Pakistan and its Gwadar port. The pact, which marks India's first instance of managing a foreign port, will enable the operation of the Shahid Beheshti terminal at the Chabahar port. There is another terminal named Shahid Kalantari, which was developed in the 1980s. However, the signing of the deal has irked the United States. The US has warned India of "potential risk of sanctions" for doing business with Iran. In fact, such sanctions by the West against Iran over its nuclear programme has been one of the major reasons that has stalled the development of the port that will give India a transit route to Afghanistan and Central Asia by bypassing Pakistan. Besides, the port is also being seen as India's counter to Pakistan's Gwadar port, where China has invested heavily.

What is the strategic importance of the port?

The deep water port (which can handle very large and heavily loaded ships) is located on the Makran Coast of Iran's Sistan-Baluchistan province. It is next to the Gulf of Oman and at the mouth of the Strait of Hormuz, which is a vital shipping route linking the Middle East to markets in Asia, Europe, and North America. Moreover, Chabahar is the only Iranian port with direct access to the Indian Ocean. In India's context, the port is closer to Gujarat on the west coast. Even from Mumbai, it is just 768 nautical miles away. Moreover, Pakistan's Gwadar port, in which China has invested heavily, is just 170 km east of Chabahar. The China-Pakistan Economic Corridor originates from the Gwadar port.

Why Chabahar port matters to India?

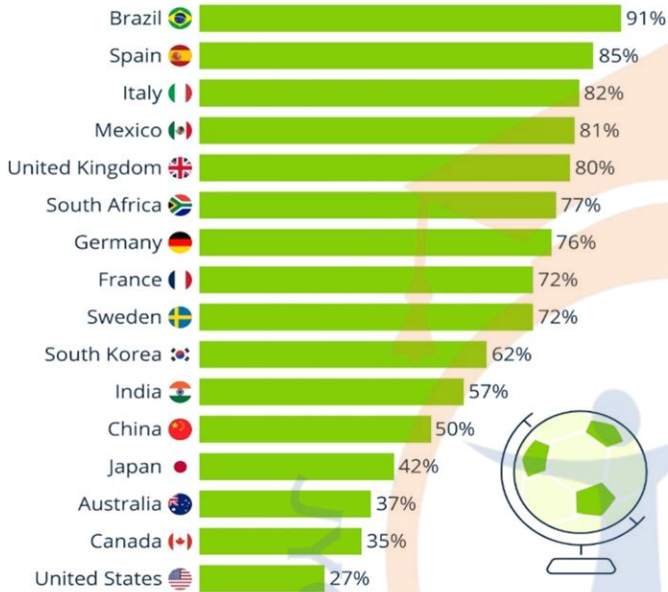

The foremost significance is a seamless transit route for Indian goods and products to Afghanistan by avoiding the land route through Pakistan. India has previously accused Pakistan of deliberately delaying the transit of goods through Karachi to Afghanistan. From Chabahar port, a road network goes up to Zaranj in Afghanistan. From there, the 218-km Zaranj-Delaram road, constructed with India's assistance, will give access to four major cities - Herat, Kandahar, Kabul and Mazar-e-Sharif. The port, once fully operational, will also give India direct access to resource-rich Central Asian countries like Turkmenistan and Kazakhstan.

Besides, it will also connect the International North-South Transport Corridor (INSTC) that joins India and Russia via Iran. This is significant as India has substantially increased its energy trade with sanctions-hit Russia. Moreover, with the Gwadar port in Pakistan giving an increasingly assertive China access to the Arabian Sea, India can monitor its activities in the Persian Gulf through Chabahar. China has inked a deal for the operational control of Gwadar port for 40 years. The project will also help India counterbalance China as it expands its footprint across South Asia through its Belt and Road Initiative (BRI).
